2022 is Year of the Nurse Educator

Celebrating You | February 24, 2022

The National League of Nursing (NLN) has declared this year as Year of the Nurse Educator to celebrate the unique contributions of nurse educators to public health and their responsibility to prepare a diverse, culturally competent, and outstanding nursing workforce.

Elsevier recognizes the impact nurse educators not only have on their students, but in national and global communities. Hear from our nurse education experts on what it means to them to recognize our educators for everything they do.

Shadow Health

The Shadow Health team recently conducted research on student attitudes in clinical simulations. They focused on the effects of a virtual patient simulation activity featuring a patient with HIV.

Findings suggest that participation in virtual simulation with a patient with HIV can positively impact nursing students' attitudes. View the study to learn about their results.
